

November 2025 Newsletter

Heaven has a new angel with the loss on earth of my friend and colleague, Georgia State Representative Mandi Ballinger. She was a champion for so many people and her legacy of service, family, and community lives on in Cherokee County.

Today is election day - please be sure to vote! This is a unique election cycle with local and municipal races as well as statewide candidates for the Public Service Commission. We also have important questions to consider regarding Fulton senior school tax exemptions for property taxes which I proudly sponsored and a TSPLOST in Cherokee County.

As the Thanksgiving holiday approaches, we are thankful for our family, friends, state, and nation. We wish you a blessed and Happy Thanksgiving from the Albers family to yours!

Georgia #1 Place for Business Again!

Gov. Brian Kemp announced Georgia is No. 1 for Business for the 12th Straight Year! This is an unmatched record. We have been working tirelessly to make Georgia the best place to live, work, and raise a family. This is further evidence of our hard work and conservative policies bringing results.

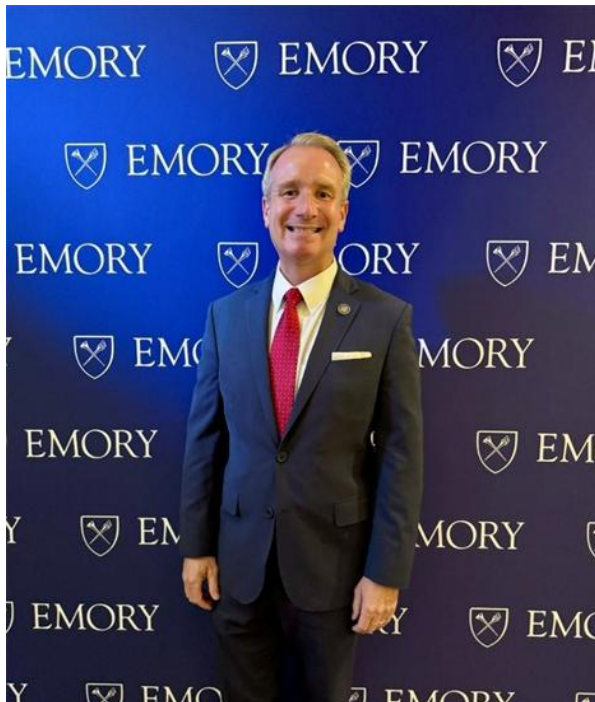

Georgia is helping families and businesses! President Ronald Reagan said it best, "The best social program is a job," and we are creating opportunities for all Georgians.

East Cobb LDS - JustServe.org

Kari and I were thrilled to attend Just Serve in East Cobb and talk to people about how we can help with state government and organ donation. Thank you to the LDS Church for inviting us.

As your Senator, I work to attend as many community events throughout my district as possible. If you have something coming up, please let me know!

Organizations share volunteer opportunities through JustServe.org which aim to enhance the quality of life in our communities.

Emory Mason Guest House

I visited the newly remodeled Mason Guest House at Emory Hospital. This remarkable building gives transplant recipients a beautiful place to stay after leaving the hospital before making the transition home.

I am forever grateful to Emory for leading the way in organ transplants and for helping my son Will and me with his transplant.

Are you an organ donor? Please check the front of your driver's license toward the bottom and look for the heart and the words ORGAN DONOR. If you are not a donor, you can go to the DDS site and make that positive change HERE.

Federal Counterparts

In October, I traveled to Washington, D.C. to meet with federal officials at the Trump White House. I also met with other key agencies to collaborate on important issues impacting the state. The visit focused on strengthening partnerships between state and federal leaders to address shared priorities such as economic growth, public safety, infrastructure investment, and national security.

This kind of engagement allows Georgia's voice to be heard at the highest levels of government and helps advance practical solutions that benefit communities across the state. It also reflects a commitment to teamwork and finding common ground to serve the people more effectively.

Georgia Pre-K Program

I love reading to Georgia's children. The GA Lottery funds Pre-K as well as the HOPE scholarship throughout Georgia and I am proud to support it. Thank you Chris Rogers and Building Kidz of Roswell for having me. The kids always enjoy when I read my favorite childhood books about firefighters and when I let them try on my helmet!
